

WHERE JAMES ONCE PLAYED

(Walker / Murray / Reilly)

About the passing of James Cruikshank of the Cruel Sea.

Released by the Lost Ragas (Matt Walker's band).

Youtube of performance - <https://youtu.be/SmGXtITC8XE?si=dKyR7BbYI4DgwUrh>

The world ain't so wide when you got a song to sing from Bangalow all the way to Berlin
Lost in freedom
He'd sing the blues
With a head full of ideas
Marking time when there's no time to lose

No monuments, wealth or heirs to show
Just a sweet refrain from a life led so
And you may hear it as the lights slowly fade if you do then you will know
This is where James once played

Now his guitar waits quietly while his hand is so still luck has been stolen it has gone with the wind

No monuments, wealth or heirs to show
Just a sweet refrain from a life led so
And you may hear it as the lights slowly fade if you do then you will know
This is where James once played

(bridge)

I never knew his family
I never thought of it until this time All I knew was that we were talking And that he was a friend of mine

No monuments, wealth or heirs to show
Just a sweet refrain from a life led so
And you may hear it as the lights slowly fade if you do then you will know
This is where James once played